General Questions

How does this work? Where does all this data come from?

ReversePhoneDetective.com is an advanced search gateway that grants you access to hundreds of millions of records about landline, mobile, and unlisted phone numbers. These records are collected from public information, data brokers, and other confidential sources.

What is the purpose of a reverse phone search?

There are many reasons why you might want to conduct a reverse phone search:

- Find out the source of a harassing ("prank") caller
- Research a number that appeared on your phone bill

- Locate an old friend from high school or college
- Research "missed calls" on your caller ID that you don't recognize
- Lookup someone's exact address
- And more

Note: By using our website, you agree not to use information found within our product for illegal reasons.
Please read our End User Agreement for more information.

Is anyone notified that I searched for them?

No. Your searches within our database are confidential, as outlined by our End User Agreement.

How do I get my own information deleted from these databases?

We take your privacy very seriously. You can "opt-out" of our website and members area for free online here.

Our opt-out system prevents your information from appearing to users that visit ReversePhoneDetective.com. It does not, however, remove your records from the source databases that we use (we have no control over these). That's why we created our Online Privacy Protection™ package.

This revolutionary package will help you remove your personal information from 44 of these databases-- and prevent data-brokers from selling your records in the future. You can purchase this package for just $4.95 on our registration page by selecting the check box near the bottom that says "Yes, I want to make my data private."

Click here to read more about our commitment to privacy.

How do I register to become a member?

To register, simply choose your preferred payment option and then checkout using our secure order form. Click here to get started.

Ordering Process Questions

Are there recurring billing charges for membership, or is this a one-time fee?

Your membership is a one-time fee only. ReversePhoneDetective.com does NOT charge recurring fees for any of its products.

How do I know my purchase is secure?

Clickbank sells our products-- they are a trusted online retailer specializing in digitally delivered products. Your information is protected by a 128-bit SSL connection-- the same security used by online banks and financial institutions. You will also see a  "lock" icon in the bottom of your browser on the checkout page, which indicates secure encryption.

Read more about our "Safe Shopping Guarantee".

What happens if I don't find what I'm looking for?

Your satisfaction is our #1 priority. If you don't find what you're looking for, our expert staff will be happy to assist you (at no extra charge) in order to locate the record in question.

What is your return policy?

If your search turns up no results-- and our professional staff is unable to help you locate the records-- you may contact our support department for a return request. If our staff finds the product was "defective" for your specific needs, a refund will be issued. For more details, view our Guarantee Policy.

What payment methods are accepted?

We accept Visa, MasterCard, American Express, Discover, Eurocard, Bravo, Diners Club, Carte Blanche, and JCB. We also accept PayPal.

Can I mail in my payment?

We do not accept mail orders.

How will the charge appear on my credit card statement?

The charge on your credit card or bank statement will appear as "CLKBANK". (There will be no evidence that you purchased a reverse phone lookup or investigation-related product.)

Product-Related Questions

What information is available in your databases?

Full Phone Reports include up-to-date information for (when available):

- Phone owner name and current address
- Line type - landline or mobile
- Household members
- Phone company and carrier
- Possible neighbors and relatives
- Issuing location
- Satellite maps
- Other phone numbers belonging to owner
- Owner's address history
- And more!

The ReversePhoneDetective.com members area gives you additional access to MILLIONS of public records, including:

- Unlimited reverse phone lookups
- Unlimited people search (over 217,582,471 U.S. households!)
- Privacy protection tools
- Household member search
- Reverse address search
- Neighbor and relative finder
- Deep web crawl and universal lookup searches
- Background checks
- And more!

At just $39.95 for an entire year of access, ReversePhoneDetective.com is an affordable and comprehensive solution for your phone search and people finder needs. Click here to join today!

How many searches do I get to conduct?

Membership at ReversePhoneDetective.com includes unlimited reverse phone lookups. Or you can choose to purchase a single Full Phone Report for just $14.95. Choose your preferred option on the Register page.

Due to licensing requirements, Full Phone Reports are limited to one per customer. Customers can purchase additional premium cell phone owner searches (Tracer Reports™) within the members area.

Do your databases cover international phone numbers?

No. Our product is for U.S. customers and information only.

Do your databases cover cell phone numbers?

Yes. Information about a mobile number's issuing location, carrier, and other details is available for almost all U.S. numbers. The availability of ownership details depends on whether the phone carrier has shared this information with our data providers.

What are the computer/browser requirements for accessing the members area?

Our members area is compatible with all major browsers and computer types. An Internet connection is required to conduct searches. Pages load quickly, so even a dial-up (modem) connection is fine.

Can I access the members area from multiple computers?

Yes. You may sign into the members area from any computer with your username and password.

Can I print the search results?

Yes. You may copy, paste, and print whatever information you find in our databases.

I'm having login problems, what do I do?

To retrieve a lost password, follow the instructions on our Login page.

How do I sign into the members area?

To sign into the members area, simply go to the Login section and enter your username and password. If you're having difficulty logging in, consult our Customer Service center.

How do I contact your support department?

To reach our friendly support staff, simply use the contact us form link at the bottom of our Customer Service page.

telephone directory (also called a

book) is a listing of telephone subscribers in a geographical area or subscribers to services provided by the organization that publishes the directory.

Subscriber names are generally listed in alphabetical order, together with their postal or street address and telephone number. Every subscriber in the geographical coverage area is usually listed, but subscribers may request the exclusion of their number from the directory, often for a fee. Their number is then said to be "unlisted" (American English), "ex-directory" (British English) or "private" (Australia and New Zealand).

In the case of unlisted numbers, practices as to Caller-ID vary by jurisdiction. Sometimes, the Caller-ID on outbound calls is blank; in other jurisdictions, unlisted numbers still appear, unless the caller dials a blocking code; in still others, the customer may request automatic blocking from the telephone company's service representatives.

In some countries under current rules and practices, mobile phone and Voice over IP listings are not included in telephone directories. Efforts to create cellular directories have met stiff opposition from several fronts, including a significant percentage of subscribers who seek to avoid telemarketers.

In 1991, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled (in Feist v. Rural) that telephone companies do not have a copyright on telephone listings, because copyright protects creativity and not the mere labor of collecting existing information. Within the geographical reach of the Court, the Feist ruling has resulted in the availability of many innovative telephone directory services on CD-ROM and the World Wide Web.

Telephone directories can be published in hard copy or in electronic form. In the latter case, the directory can be provided as an online service through proprietary terminals or over the Internet, or on physical media such as CD-ROM.

In France, the Minitel videotex system originated as an attempt by France Télécom to rid itself of its paper publishing costs by forcing all telephone users to use Minitel terminals instead.

In Switzerland, a few pay phones are now accompanied with electronic telephone directory terminals instead of paper directories, and phone users are charged for each search.

A telephone directory may also be called a phone book or may be known by the color of the paper it is printed on.

- White pages generally indicates personal or alphabetic listings.
- Yellow pages, sometimes called the A2Z, generally indicates a business directory classified by business type or services provided, almost always with paid advertising.
- Black pages, sometimes called a "reverse telephone directory".
- Other colors may have other meanings, depending on a country's customs. Information on government agencies is often printed on blue or green pages.

A telephone directory may also provide instructions about how to use the telephone service in the local area, may give important numbers for emergency services, utilities, hospitals, doctors and organizations who can provide support in times of personal crisis. It may also have civil defense or emergency management information. There may be transit maps, postal code guides, or stadium seating charts, as well as advertising.

The first telephone directory, consisting of a single page, was issued on February 21, 1878. It covered 50 subscribers in New Haven, Connecticut. The Reuben H. Donnelly company asserts that it published the first classified directory, or yellow pages, for Chicago, Illinois, in 1886. The first British telephone directory was published in 1880.

A reverse telephone directory, reverse directory, criss-cross directory or cross-reference directory, is a telephone directory in which the entries are in order by address (first by city name, then by street name, then by house number), and were used to find out the name of a subscriber with a particular address or to find the neighbors of a particular address. They were fairly common until the 1960s, as a separately published book, or sometimes included at the back of the regular telephone directory with each section on a different color paper. Printed reverse directories have become less common with the availability of telephone databases on CD-ROM and on the Internet, which have advanced searching features.

They are not well-known to the general public since they have generally been available on a limited basis to telephone companies or government officials, although genealogists and private investigators know which public libraries have them in their collection. In addition, some telephone companies have made the information generally available through little known services, such as the "2080 service" in Chicago (now discontinued), where a call to the exchange and the number 2080 produced an operator who would give the name and address of any other number in that exchange. But such services remain online.

Instead of looking up a number, a call to directory assistance (4-1-1 in the NANP) will give the same results if a book is not available. However, there is usually a significant charge for this.

In the United Kingdom, Ireland and many other countries it is illegal to perform a reverse lookup from a phone number, although some companies have attempted to sell reverse directories. CD-ROM telephone directories supplied by telephone operators are now sold in an encrypted format that allows only lookups from a name and address.

In Jersey, the paper phone book has a form of reverse directory with the phone number and then the name and address, for example:

- 712345 – Mr A Smith, 1 Any Street, Saint Helier
- 712346 – Mrs B Johnson, 2 Any Street, Saint Helier

It exists after the regular directory in the phone book.
